The Present Generation Lives at telegraph speed-eats too fast, retires too late, does not rise betimes, smokes and (alas, that we should have to C. Ireland, jr. say it!) chews two much tobacco. The consequences are dyspepsis, a general absence of that robust and manly vigor which characterized our ancestors, and a manifest proneness to early decay. Regular hours, a due allowance of time for meals, the disuse of excessive smoking, and altogether of chewing tobacco, in connection with a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, will in nine cases out of ten efface consequences of the abuses of the laws of health indicated above. A want of stamina. dyspepsia, nervousness and biliousness are among these conse-quences, and they are bodily ills to the removal of which the Bitters is specially adapted. Nor is the Bitters less fitted to overcome and prevent fever and ague, kidney and bladder troubles and rheumatic ailments. It is also a fine appetizer and promoter of convalescence.

"While down in the southwestern part of the state some time ago," says Mr. W. Chalmers, editor of the Chico (Cal.) Enterprise, "I had an attack of dysentery. Having heard of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy I bought a bottle. A couple of doses of it completely cured me. Now I am a champion of that remedy for all stomach and bowel complaints." For sale by A. C. Ireland, jr.

Personally, Gov. McKinley is worthy and popular, but in the present attitude of the people toward him his nomination in 1896 would be bad politics.

The burden of labor is constantly being lightened by new inventions, but nothing new has yet been discovered to brighten the hours of labor, and make life worth living like Simmons Liver Regulator does. It's the king of liver medicines. A sluggish liver cepresses one's spirits and causes languor, besides upsetting the whole system. But Simmons Liver Regulator tones up and strengthens the body.

There is one medicine which every family should be provided with. We refer th Chamberlain's Pain Balm. When it is kept at hand a severe pain of a burn or scald may be promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate attention, before the parts become swollen, and when Chamberlain's Pain Balm is applied it will heal them without matter being formed, and without leaving a scar. A sore throat may be cured in one night. A piece of flaunel damped with this linament and bound on over the seat of pain, will cure lame back four hours. It is the most valuable, however, for rheumatism. Persons afflicted with this disease will be delighted with the prompt relief from pain which it affords, and it can be depended upon to effect a complete cure. For sale by A. C. Ireland, jr.

Mr. J. K. Fowler, secretary and treasurer of the Corione Mill, Canal and Stock Co. of Corinne, Utah, in speaking of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy says: "I consider it the best in the market. HE WON HIS BET.

Two French officers were standing at Fort Victrine on the edge of the Sahara "I'll wager 50 napoleons," said one of them, "that no European ever goes from here to Fort St. Denis alone and reaches

"You must not think of it, my dear

sir," cried the young lieutenant, who had offered the wager. "Perhaps it may not turn out to be such a terrible business, after all," said the lit-tle man. "I'm going straight to the colo-

And he did get it, sure enough, though it was not without a severe twinge of con-science that Colonel Lagrange gave his

Rash as he was, however, the bold adventurer had a method in his madness, for the first thing he did was to assume an Arab dress, knowing that however useless such a disguise might prove at close quarters against the keen eyes of his enemies, yet if they saw from a distance a solitary man in native garb they might not think it worth while to ride after him, as they would certainly do after a European.

When the hour for starting came, not merely the old colonel, but every other officer who was not actually on duty crowded to the gate of the little fortress to witness the departure of their adventurous

"Can I carry any message for you to Fort St. Denis, colonel?" asked the latter, turning to Colonel Lagrange as coolly as if he were only setting out for a pionic instead of running a risk in which the chances were 90 to 1 of his being killed.

"Well, since you will go," rejoined the veteran, laughing in spite of himself, "you might give this paper to the commandant, and I only hope you'll survive to deliver

There is no more grim or dreary spectacle upon the face of the earth, except perhaps the kindred wastes of central Asia, than the mighty desert that stretches almost unbroken from the palm groves of Egypt to the waves of the Atlantic. All at once, in the very midst of the hot, brassy glare which makes all earth and brassy glare which makes all earth and aky seem on fire together, the palmy crests of a long line of graceful palms are seen standing like sentinels along the edge of a clear, still, shining lake. But it is only that fatal mirage of the desert, which mocks the weary eye of the lost wanderer, only to add a keener agony to the bitterness of the desert. ness of his despair.

To the brave Frenchman, however, this visionary splendor and this weird, ever-lasting desolation were alike hackneyed spectacles, and forward he went without even troubling himself to look at them.

Ten miles of the 20 had already been accomplished, then 12, 14, 15. He had now achieved three-fourths of his perilous journey, and at length, mounting the crest of one of the long, wavelike sand ridges, he descried far in the distance the low white walls of Fort St. Denis, with its gay tricolor flag of France waving jauntily above

But at the same moment he caught sight of something else which was by no means so satisfactory—a distant group of white mantles and glittering spear points and Arab horses coming straight down upon

The fact was that the French had so often employed native messengers that every man, even if he looked like an Arab, was now an object of suspicion to those desert vultures.

But when they neared our hero and saw But when they neared our hero and saw that he quietly continued on his way with-out taking any notice of them whatever they began to think that they must be wrong in suspecting him, naturally sup-posing that his showing so little fear of them was a proof that he could have no reason to be afraid.

As the six wild horsemen closed around him, brandishing their guns and spears, but still in doubt whether to attack him or not, the disguised Frenchman drew himself up defiantly, indulged in a series of those excited gesticulations which are char-acteristic of Mohammedan pilgrims and then called out to them flercely in Arabic:

"Begone, transgressors of the law! A true believer hath no fellowship with the sinners who violate the sacred con of the prophet."

"What mean you?" asked the nearest horseman in a tone of amazement, which was certainly not without reason. "What call you this?" retorted the ac-cuser with stern emphasis. And quick as

thought he drew forth from beneath the Arab's white mantle an undeniable pork

A yell of mingled horror and indigna-tion burst from his comrades as the "un-clean flesh" came to light, and their holy anger broke forth anew when the reprov-ing stranger produced a small flask of wine from the pouch of another of the hand

This was more than flesh and blood could bear. One of the zealous Moslems dealt a heavy blow to the wretch who thus defled the precepts of the holy Koran, whereupon the flerce Arab leveled his gun and shot him dead on the spot, being himself in-stantly shot dead in turn by the slain man's brother.

Meanwhile the supposed sausage eater, being coarsely reviled by two of his comrades, drew his sword and mortally wounded both. The next moment he went down before the sixth man's stroke, but in falling he avenged himself with a pistol shot, and a scouting party from St. Denis, drawn to the spot by the firing, found all the six Arabs dead or dying and the mysterious traveler looking on with the quiet satisfaction of one watching the success of a great scientific experiment. man's brother.

New Women Alded by an Earthquake. New Women Aided by an Earthquake.

It is not everywhere that the "new woman" gets an earthquake to assist her in securing her rights. In a certain village of Calabris the women used all to be kept very much indoors and not permitted to take their walks abroad as they wished.

But the other day a seismic disturbance destroyed all the houses in the said village, and the inhabitants were reduced to taking shelter in temporarily constructed huts. Naturally the Calabrian ladies were able to enjoy more liberty under the conhuts. Naturally the Calabrian ladies were able to enjoy more liberty under the conditions of life brought about by the catastrophe, and they have determined selemnly that, having once tasted the sweets of freedom, they will never consent to be cooped up again. They owe a great deal to that earthquake.—Chicago Times-Her attractive and an-other not? It isn't entirely a question of age or features or intellect. The most admirable and attractive thing about an attractive woman is her wo-manliness. Every-maniness. Everybody doesn't realize just what it is that makes her womanly. She must have health, of course, because without it she would lose the brightness of her eyes, the fullness of her cheeks and her vivacity. Health brings all these things but health means more than most people think of. Real health must mean that a woman is really a woman. That she is strong and perfect in a sexual way, as well as in every other. That she is capable of performing perfectly the duties of maternity. Upon her strength in this way depends to a large extent her general health, her good looks and her attractiveness. Some women are born stronger than others. Some are born with what is called "constitutional weakness." It is easier for some women to retain health and strength than it is for others. Some seem able to do anything they like, whenever they like, without serious results. Still, there is no reason why women should not enjoy perfect health. Those who do not, need only take the proper precautions and the proper remedy to become perfectly well and strong. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure any derangement of the distinctly feminine organism. It is absolutely certain. There are some who have neglected themselves so long that a complete cure is next to impossible, but even these will find comfort are some who have neglected themselves so long that a complete cure is next to impossible, but even these will find comfort and improved health in the use of the "Favorite Prescription."
